part of the society in higher education is vital. This will also help our country transform into a middle income country by 2025 through equal participation of females at higher education.

During the two days’ forum, in addition to the common problems mentioned above, i.e., society related problems, economic and psychological related problems, educational centers’ related problems, such as abuse and mistreatment of female students in and outside of the universities, lack of sufficient facilities and lack of securities have been raised as core problems and discussed.

Although the EFDRE government have made great effort in raising the participation of females in all level of education, their participation especially at higher education remains low, said HE Shitaye Minalu, Deputy Speaker of the House of Representative, during the opening session of Higher Education Female Students Training Forum hosted here in DDU from December 13-14, 2014. And their law participation has been stated manly to be due to social, economical and psychological factors.

In her report (MoE 20014) she said, despite female students graduating rate at higher education in first degree has increased from 120,924 (23.4%) in 2003E.C to 166,141 (28.7%) in 2005E.C, when compared to male students, their graduate number has still been very low. The report also stated that females post graduate rate in between the year 2003E.C and 2005E.C has increased from 2783 (14.4%) to 6094 (14.9%). However, their equal participation with male students in post graduation has still been very low. Hence, it was remarked that, unless this issue is addressed by higher institutions and work accordingly, bringing the relevant change and meeting the fourth educational development goal (ESDP IV) will be difficult.

In order the country benefit from their contribution to the economy growth and development, promoting the participation of nearly half part of the society in higher education is vital. This will also help our country transform into a middle income country by 2025 through equal participation of females at higher educations. During the two days’ forum, in addition to the common problems mentioned above, i.e., society related problems, economic and psychological related problems, educational centers’ related problems, such as abuse and mistreatment of female students in and outside of the universities, lack of sufficient facilities and lack of securities have been raised as core problems and discussed.

Creating conducive learning environment for female students, empowering female students with leadership skills through the provision of training and panel discussions, boosting their psychological readiness to do everything through showing care and good family relations, creating the awareness to all campus staff about gender equality and make them responsible in empowering female students in every activities of the university, preparing tutorial classes for them and promoting their participation in leadership positions were among the points that have been given great stress and which the forum at last has agreed to work and bring relevant change.

said, Omdurman Islamic State University has about 18 colleges in different specialization, so the two universities can collaborate in these all areas. However, he added, the current concentration will be on microfinance which will be used according to Islamic rules. Because there are financing which do not use interest, that the Islamic State University financing will be the one.

The President further said, in addition to the centrality to the Eastern Cluster universities that DDU is located, because of the availability of Muslim students who want a bill to have financed according to Islamic approaches his University chose DDU. However, he added, this is not only confined to Muslim students, non Muslims can benefit from practice of Islamic financing. We have about seven kinds of different Islamic financing. And this can all be used by micro financing institution in their financing and in their transaction with their customers. He then, pledged to put the memorandum of understanding into execution.

Dr. Hassen Abas at last thanked Dr. Welday Amaha, Executive Director of the Association of Ethiopian Micro-finance Institution, who arranged such event and also for his keen effort to extend microfinance according to Islamic principles to Dire Dawa University.

DDIT prepares Orientation to 2007 Fresh Students

Artist Lawyer Abebe Balcha (Asnake) shares his experiences to DDU students

Artist Lawyer Abebe Balcha (mostly known as Asnake after a favorite series TV drama movie Sewe-Lese) attended in DDU and shared his experience to Dire Dawa University students on October, 2014. Artist Lawyer Abebe Balcha, is also Good Will Ambassador to the Ministry of Health (MoH), shared his experience marking the 16th annual review meeting on health sector that was hosted in Dire Dawa Administration in collaboration with Ministry of Health.

Before Abebe Balcha, Dr Abdissa Urke, Disease Prevention and Control Directorate Director of the Federal MoE, gave a wide presentation about the status of mental health in Ethiopia supporting with statistics. He said, for the last few years, MoH has achieved big success in minimizing the spread of different infectious diseases like HIV AIDS mainly working closely with regional health bureaus. However, in the area of non contagious diseases such as mental health, MoH has brought insignificant change mainly due the scant emphasis that it has given. Thus, Dr Abdissa added, because mental health is becoming a serious issue in Ethiopia, particularly in an areas where substances are available, arranging such type of experience sharing would help to create awareness to youngsters about mental health. And with regard to Dire Dawa, he said, as compare to other part of the country, Dire Dawa has vibrant society with potential substance users. So through advocacy about mental health it is possible to bring understanding and change.

Following Dr. Abdissa, the stage was occupied by Artist Lawyer Abebe Balcha who gave an interesting lesson about mental health problems bringing the context of his own young time experiences and practices into the relevant context of the time which has made him possible to control the audience attention. He said, mental health problems can affect any age group, sex, socio-economic class or ethnic group. The basic causes of mental health are life experiences such as trauma or abuse, family history, biological such as genes and brain chemistry and most prominently use of alcohols and drug substances. Focusing on substances related mental health such as drug and chat, he said, these substances are becoming major causes of mental health problems among youngsters that once treated, like any illness, it can be cured.

Abebe Balch who shared good life experiences to students told them to be vigilant against any substances during their staying inside the university. One of the remarkable experiences he raised and shared to the students was the bad effect of chat addiction that it once had brought on the work experience of his workmate when he and his friend had been in Istanbul for business. He said, his friend who was a brilliant lawyer was totally unable to work without chat in Istanbul and was made him to burden the entire tasks by himself until they backed to Addis.

He thus advised students not to easily be attracted with chat and other substances available in environment and risk their future life.

Abebe Balcha who was born and bred in Addis has got three children from one woman; he has stayed 35 years in marriage with Wro. Meaza Biru, owner of Sheger Radio Station.

DDIT launches a 5 year strategic plan

Institute of Technology launched a five years strategic plan which will serve from 2007-2012 E.C on a conference held on August, 2014 in DDU.

The strategic plan was developed according to the principle of Balanced Score card (BSC).

Dire Dawa Institute of Technology (DDIT) is one of the ten institutes started in Ethiopia to support the realization of the transformation towards industry led economy.

DDIT started its actual operation in Dire Dawa on 2007/2008 academic year by enrolling 88 students in the Department of Computer science.

Deans, directors, department heads and invited guests attended the panel discussion.
